About us

My wife Claire and I are very involved in local food production and building food sovereignty in Ireland. We do this through our Organic Farm on the Dingle peninsula and our shop in Tralee where we only sell certified organic produce. We have been working for over a decade with our local and wider communities to build our resilience in the face of climate change and ecological collapse.

Both our farm and shop are certified organic. We work using natural farming systems. On our farm we use permaculture, agroforestry, ecological and biological systems.

We have spent over 10 years researching how we can; from the individual, through community to national levels; transition from the conventional and industrialised food system to a more nature based resilient and sustainable community based system.

What we expect from trainee

We can offer a good insight into what we do, how we do it, and why we do it.

From the trainee we need someone willing to mainly work on the farm with Thomas and shadow him as he works on our Transition Farming and Community Resilience workshops.
