About me

I did a post-graduate study in sustainable development, with an internship in Cloughjordan Ecovillage - Ireland: With the NGO Cultivate I worked on a project about local initiatives in relation to the Sustainable Development Goals (SDG's). For the European network ECOLISE, I worked with the communications coordinator. I have also done practical work in the ecovillages' Sensory Garden project.

After finding my passion through my postgraduate study, my internship and a permaculture design course, I would love to engage myself also on a professional level in the field of sustainable food and agriculture, climate change and resilience. I strongly believe in an inclusive, systemic approach for sustainable, rural and social development.

What I expect from host organisation

I am very eager to keep on learning and experiencing about SRD and the topics above, both on a practical as on an organizational level, in order to get an overall picture. Moreover I would love to learn about the European dimension and to exchange and network with people from other countries. I feel empowered by discovering good-practices and meeting like-minded people.
