About me

Hello! I am currently studying for a Master degree in Sustainable Agriculture at the Mediterranean Agronomic Institute of Chania (Greece). I have a Bachelor's degree in Political Science. Last year I did a 4-month traineeship placement in a small farm in the Canary islands (Spain), where I was working as garden coordinator - i.e. planted many veggies, learned to speak Spanish and also finished integral permaculture diploma course.

My big goal is to start a project of an agroecological farm that gives marginalized people opportunity for earning fair livelihood whilst providing the local community with high quality food and ecosystem services. I love getting my hands dirty and seeing the fruits of my work! I am also super excited about compost, mycorrhizae, ecosystem restoration, using weeds for food and medicine, goats and beekeeping, and would love to have more practical experience with all of the above. I have previous experience with working on the radio, in a research centre and with integration of refugees, that might prove useful in some way.

What I expect from host organisation

Knowledge about their field and professionalism, hands-on learning, support and mentorship. I love challenges and I like to have a level of autonomy and responsibility in my work. Preferred stay would be 1-2 months so that there is enough time to get something done and really learn from each other.

Preferred languages

EN, CR, ES, other languages: IT, GR, FR
